Calls between Midnight and 7AM are never acceptable.

So why is it late this time?

I have had an especially busy Christmas/Inventory period at work with 60-70 hour weeks being the rule and not the exception. Inventory is now over (January 17) and things will get back to normal.

In my spare time, what little I have, I have been finishing the IDA Publisher's Handbook. This is now DONE and will be going to Walt Buchanan for photo-offset printing in a few days. I am sorry for the delay in LD.

As you may know the IDA elections are over. The results are;
Vice President/Treasurer; Lenard Lakofka 54, Robert Sacks 40
Editor; Gordon Anderson 9; Scott Rosenberg 87
Ombudsman; Steven Brooks 13; John Leeder 83
Membership Secretary; Stephen Tihor 72, opposed 21
At-Large Secretaries; (2nd ballot) Matthew Diller 55; Raymond Heuer 51; Joel Klein 76
Atlantic Regional Secretary; Gil Neiger 27, opposed 15
Canadian Regional Secretary; Robert Correll 11, opposed 0
Central Regional Secretary; John Baker 13, David Weitz 7
Overseas Regional Secretary; Walter Luc Haas 3, opposed 0
Pacific Regional Secretary; 3rd ballot David Kalecek 9,
Bruce Schlickbernd 6

The records and accounts of the IDA will be transferred to me shortly. I have received quite a few checks so far and must await my ability to sign the IDA endorsement on their account before depositing them. PLEASE make the checks payable to the INTERNATIONAL DIPLOMACY ASSOCIATION, and not to me!

Many thanks to everyone who voted for me and to Bob Sacks for his regards and the well run campaign.

I guess that everyone thought the all-time record was a challenge to their correctness! It comes from some time that Gordon Anderson who claims that Gil Neiger did not print his campaign statement. Anderson has sealed in a copy of this alleged statement and if it were printed it is safe to say that the margin between Anderson and Rosenberg would not have been 70 votes!

Also from Anderson we find a claim that Gordon gave Allan Colthart the '75 Diplomacy Tournament prize money, an such no loss! I have spoken to Allan and he denies this claim.

There could also be a problem with the "DipCon" title and the date of "DipCon".

All-in-all our 1976 Ombudsman will have his hands full! There may be some help in the form of a joint suit by the prize winners at the '75 Convention to gain their prizes. It will be interesting to watch.

Conventions in reply to Lew Pulsipher's in DIPLOMACY WORLD 2-4

I can not fully agree with Lew Pulsipher's comments on Conventions in DIPLOMACY WORLD 2-4. This is due to a basic difference in philosophy on the future of the hobby. I am of the belief that Diplomacy/Wargaming Conventions will take on the scope of the large chess or bridge tournaments in the years to come. Others, of whom I believe Lew is one, are of the opinion that Diplomacy/Wargaming Conventions are always going to be amateur events held in gyms, small halls, basements and college classrooms. If one agrees that there will be a long term/permanent amateur status in Diplomacy/Wargaming then one does not expect anything grand in the way of a convention. If, on the other hand, one believes that our little hobby is going somewhere then nothing less than a major convention, with numerous regional events, is the obvious alternative.

Players, as well as convention organizers, have philosophies on what a convention should be like. To some players the ideal convention is one with lots of games and small to non-existent entrance fees. Such a convention could be held in an empty lot as long as the wind didn't blow everything away. To other players an ideal convention is an adult meeting of the minds in competition for some type of trophy/prize. These latter players are seeking a more structured event for which they would be willing to pay a little bit more in the way of an entry fee. Both groups are interested in playing the games for fun and praise and both are interested in meeting new and old friends. Each type of convention will tend to draw a majority of players with a similar philosophy although some players of each type will attend any convention in their own area.

For conventions to grow, to become self sustaining, to gain an adult (at least semi-adult) following it is necessary for them to be done in a professional manner. This means competent advertising, planning and staffing of the event, a large comfortable location and money. Trying to run a large convention without front money is impossible.

I have run/participated in five conventions. Three in Lake Geneva and two in Chicago. In each of these efforts there has been growth in the convention as a media and subsequent growth in the hobby attitude toward such events. Until "DipCon" V in Chicago in 1972 there were no 'hotel' conventions. I and my partner worked to bring a new status and an air of respectability to the Convention. We brought the Diplomacy Convention out of the school house and made an event out of it. Many of the minimum standards now set for Diplomacy Conventions were due to the Chicago Shows and our pioneering efforts.

It is also true that the Chicago Shows have taken a financial bath. However the reason for this catastrophe at the ticket office is a coupling of a convention with a trade show. Monies were spent, and lost, on misdirected public advertising and industry ads. With proper use of 'on house' advertising a profitable hotel convention is a certainty.

In 1976 advertising for a convention should continue in the Diplomacy Press and key wargaming publications. Subsequent conventions will have ads in local newspapers, the GRI flyer, and all Diplomacy Publications. Tying a Diplomacy Tournament to a major wargaming convention helps both of them. The more solvent, and well planned the convention the larger the prizes. The fact that DipCon VIII winners have not been paid off does not mean that future conventions can not offer and pay out large prizes. Such moneys could go into the ISE, for example.

I agree with Lew that a convention should contain seminars and other social events. In years past we've had a tournament, an IDA meeting, and a lot of wide-eyed drunks running around the hotel until 4AM! Social contact is almost solely restricted to non-convention hours and thus much of the quality and quantity of possible social contact is destroyed. A convention should be a multi-faceted event designed to bring people together over more than just the gaming table. The IDA General Meeting conducts business but the convention must be fun. I have missed meeting and talking with a great number of people due to the tight schedule of tournament rounds and the IDA General Meeting.

In the bill now before the Council Lew's convention Site committee lays down a great many rules and regulations for selecting the site of IDA General Meeting. It must be remembered that the IDA can only suggest to a convention host how things should be done. Lew would like the IDA to almost control much of what is done at each IDA General Meeting Site and how it is done. This clearly is playing with the host's money and is unfair to that host. A few years ago the IDA meeting site went to whomever would offer to take it. Let's not kill the Golden Goose by regulating a convention host to death!

Lew points out parallels between the Science Fiction Community and Diplomacy. Anyone who has attended a SciFi brawl knows that there is no comparison! What may work or hold true for Science Fiction Conventions, or Bridge or Chess Tournaments may not work for Diplomacy/Wargaming.

Lew writes as if he knows all of the answers--I assure you that he does not!

Magazine Notes;

In CLAW & FANG #61 (Don Horton, 16 Jordan Ct., Sacramento Calif. 95826) there is the first part on an article on rating a multiplayer boardgame (by Arnold Vagts). It asks such probing questions as "What would Jeff's (score) be in Game 3?" There is a recipe for "Two Great Bar Cookies" (How many grams of CHOs?) and a report on the Fangmaster's trip to France. Interesting.

COMMAND #1 (Dennis Agosta, PO Box 247 Blacksburg Virginia 24060) did not contain as many articles as we would have liked to see. But it is just beginning. #2 should be better. The photo-offset quality is mediocre, alas.

The Pocket Armenian (one of our favorite zines--we loves it we does--Scott Rosenberg, 182-31 Radnor Rd., Jamaica NY 11432) #26 has many interesting articles this time including Matt Diller's article on being organized (giggle); Robert Sacks, Bureaucrat (by Scott---right on!); The KU KLUX KLANSMAN KLAS in DAD by Adam Kaschhof (The levels are; Redneck, Bigot, Racist, Archie Bunker, Grand Imperial Dragon, Royal Dragon, Wizard, Grand Wizard, Lester Maddox and George Wallace!); plus games and other items of interest. Recommended.

RUNESTONE (John Leeder, 208 Haysboro Cr. SW, Calgary, Alta., Canada T2V 3G3) 100-102 contains information on variants, lots of news ("Odds and Ends"), Games, The ODD MOD Rating System (we has only got a 494.6 cob), and other items. Also from John is the zine "Due Process" on the proceeding of the IDA Judicial Committee. Other items of interest are often contained.

John Baker (the new Central Regional Secretary) has produced his own zine on IDA happenings. (It would be clearer if you stuck to long run purple masters.) It is an excellent first effort showing that he deserved your vote.

A contest, The GAME, a symposium on "codewords" in Diplomacy orders, a dirty joke, The Gift of the Magus (Ulanov), and a review of Tubular Bells et. al. Recommended!

Next we have FANTASY TODAY (Ron Lowe, 1376 Northmount Drive, Calgary, Alberta, Canada T2L 0G1) #6 which is a journal of postal fantasy--I thought that is what these all were, oh well--including all sorts of fun reading. Look it over for a penny a page plus postage (send 50¢ for a sample--this issue is 44 pages long!).

Also in the Dungeon we find VALINOR (Michael Muchnik, 2520 Hyacinth Court, Westbury, N.Y. 11590) which often contains D&D material plus Diplomacy games. A good zine to start out in. Game fee $1.50 plus sub @ 10/32. The game is protected by da DNYMPA!

Yawn--I guess its time for the games, sigh.

Scoring & Curtailment of the Game

Part of the artificiality of the tournament 'curtailment' system is the prior knowledge of the point at which curtailment will occur. When each player knows that 1908 (e.g.) is the final year (or the game will end at 3:45) he can plan his strategy towards that end. (In a multi-round single elimination event players are forced into best play each game.) A multi-round cumulative-point-total event causes playing style to be radically changed. In games one and two players seek an adequate birth in the standings to give them play for the final round. Thus curtailments scoring is often taken advantage and 'architected' final results occur. Can the architecting be eliminated/reduced? Yes it can, but first we must consider the question of what makes a good showing.

I believe that three factors should be considered in the scoring;

1. Rank (place) in the individual game
2. Rank among all playing the same country
3. # of Supply Centers held

Allan Calhauer has used items 1+3 combined to yield a result which nets points via item #2. Birsan/Rocamora have used a combined value determined by items 1+3 alone. Both have used an artificial end to the games to produce results.

A three round event, 2 rounds on Saturday and one on Sunday has been used as the tournament schedule for three years. This system forces a curtailment mode onto the players, since two rounds won't fit on Saturday any other way.

I am not opposed to a three round system but the method of judging (Gamesmastering) it should be much more strict. Some boards (individuals) tend to be very lethargic. Those boards/individuals should be penalized.

The senior GM should invoke strict time limits for each season. Each board must adhere to that schedule (or more more rapidly) or be penalized. One way of doing this is to have a time judge who will go to each board and check on progress. He will initial and record the time on each game's master record card and will penalize slow boards/individuals. Some players will attempt to drag out negotiations or will take a very long time to write orders. Under a well run tournament system slowpokes will be penalized. Persons who try to latch on to a player(s) until the end of a time period to prevent his negotiating with other players will also be penalized for unsportsmanlike tactics. It is my opinion that a casual tournament in which the senior GM wanders around and talks to everyone is a poorly run tournament.

If we assume strict and competent gamesmastering of a timed three round event we must determine a scoring method and a penalty system adequate to prevent more 'architected'.

How are the three above factors weighed against each other?

What determines the end of each round?

Should scores be combined or should there be eliminations?

Taking the last question first it should be observed that a system that could be very effective is one in which there is a two round elimination event with a third round to determine the winner(s). Thus round one and two would give cumulative scores that would eliminate all but 7, 14 or 21 players! The # of players in the final round could be determined via, e.g., $(2/7)N$ rounded to the closest whole multiple of 7. In the last round rank in the first two rounds could be added to final score to yield a winner.

When is the round over? If we use a 25 minute initial negotiation, 2 minutes to write orders and 5 minutes to adjudicate then 15.2, 5 for Fall 1901 through Fall 1903 we end up with 2 hours and 21 minutes for the first three years. If all subsequent years take 12.2, 5 a 6 year game last 4 1/2 hours, 7 years 4.9 hours, 8 years 5.53 hours, 9 years 6.16 hours, 19 years in 6.8 hours etc. Thus an 8AM start would yield a 3PM finish for a 10 year game.

7 If, however, curtailment was an unknown factor being determined via a formula like $1906 + (1-4)$ so that curtailment could occur in 1907-08-09 or 10 we would add a new structure to the game. Players could not construct an ending in an open ended

IMPASSABLE #60 (John Boyer 117 Gatland Drive, Carlisle, Pa. 17013) is in a new center stapled format. In the center, appropriately, is a nude mixed photo of a mystery Diplomacy personality! Fallovio #10 (Ray Mezer, 102-42 Jamaica Ave., Richmond Hill, NY 11418) A Dating Test is the first feature (We ended up with a one logged troll--is this considered a flunk?), games, and "a new rating system"--although player poll would be more accurate. A sample form for this "system" is below. Detach (or send a facsimile) to Ray. List all players you have competed against in calendar 1975 for 6 or more consecutive seasons. Rate each on a 1 worst to 10 best scale on these items:

[illegible]

You may append sheets. Remember ONLY people you have PLAYED AGAINST!

January 23 1976

event! Actual score per round could also be determined by a sliding 'winner' scale. So that 12 centers + (1-6) would yield a 'winner'. By eliminating 'absolutes' players would be forced to play with vigor in all 3 rounds of the event!

Then the score is determined by: (e.g.)

$$\frac{14}{R_g} + \frac{7}{R_e} + S = \text{Score}$$

R = Rank in the event

R^c = Rank in the game

S^g = Supply Centers

A Bonus is added for a 'win' or a draw. E.g.: $B = \frac{12}{W}$ W = # of winners

In a curtailed game B could equal $\frac{12}{S} - 2$ where S is # of survivors or the term could be dropped altogether. (Eliminated players are ranked by year of elimination.)

Penalties for delay of game would come directly from the score or the most severe tactic would be to remove the offender from the game.

This is a reasonable system because in recent years players not on the top board or second board in the last round were effectively out of the tournament anyway.
